DAYTON, Ohio, March 30, 1972 --- The University of Dayton was the recipient recently of a gift of sixty-eight volumes that once were a part of President U.S. Grant's personal library. The gift is anonymous and is part of an extensive library which has been promised to the University over the years.

The volumues, according to Mr. Raymond Nartker, librarian, are in excellent condition and have fine bindings. Among them are the works of Charles Lamb, Robert Browning, and Milton; The Life and Writings of Washington; Macaulay's History of England; and the first fifteen volumes of the Atlantic Monthly.

Some of the books are on display on the UD library's second floor while others are in the rare book room.
